Lesson 10-01

The Technology of the Beast

The Beast System {Moving into the Post Human Age}

The Beast System

Rev 13:16 And he causeth all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and bond, to receive a mark in their right hand, or in their foreheads:

17 And that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name.

18 Here is wisdom. Let him that hath understanding count the number of the beast: for it is the number of a man; and his number is Six hundred threescore and six.⁵

Genetic experimentation is now taking place in most parts of the world, including the United States, Great Britain, and Australia.

In Australia, animal eggs are being used to create hybrid human embryos to produce stem cells for medical research.

In our own country, President Obama signed legislation on 9 March 2009 to expand this research.

Moving into the Post Human Age [154]

New life forms are being produced through synthetic biology that is binding animal, plant, and human genes together.

In the United Kingdom there are hybrid rabbit and human as well as cow and human embryos produced in the name of scientific research.

Also, the reanimation of dead human cells has already been accomplished.

Moving into the Post Human Age [154]

In the United States researchers at Stanford University has managed to create mice with partly human brains.

Moving into the Post Human Age [154]

Because of this research, there are a number of universities in the United States that are beginning to develop guidelines “for the use of human subjects in...the next frontier in medical technology-genetic enhancement.”

We have now entered the “trans-human or “posthuman” age.

Moving into the Post Human Age

What now are the limits?

Is this the same thing that was happening before the Flood that caused God to destroy the world to prevent the demonic pollution of the human gene pool?

Gen 6:4 There were giants in the earth in those days; and also after that, when the sons of God came in unto the daughters of men, and they bare children to them, the same became mighty men which were of old, men of renown.

Moving into the Post Human Age [154]

What is to prevent our future leaders from engineering the ultimate soldier?

Supersoldiers and superanimals (with human type brains) that might be created with this technology could be engineered with superintelligence and capable of “unprecedented lethal force.”

In fact, some believe that this is also the message of the UFO occupants.

Chuck Missler and Mark Eastman, who believe that these aliens are demonic interdimensional travelers, write the following about the messages of UFO occupants to abductees:^[155]

Moving into the Post Human Age

“These messages can include the notion that aliens are our creators, that they are trying to advance our evolution through these breeding experiments, and that mankind must unify – with their assistance – into a system of global governance and religion in order to survive future cataclysms.” [155]

Rapid Move toward a Surveillance Society [156]

To put the world into perspective regarding the current activities of Russian military moves, Richard C. Cook reports:

Rapid Move toward a Surveillance Society [156]

“Since the 1980s the U.S. has been fighting wars throughout the world either directly or by proxy. The former Yugoslavia was dismembered by NATO. Under cover of 9/11 and by utilizing off-the-shelf plans, the U.S. is now engaged in the military conquest and permanent military occupation of the Middle East. A worldwide encirclement of Russia and China by U.S. and NATO forces is underway, and a new push to militarize space has begun. The Western powers are clearly preparing for at least the possibility of another world war.”

Rapid Move toward a Surveillance Society [156]

Cook then adds:

“The expansion of the U.S. military empire abroad is mirrored by the creation of a totalitarian system of surveillance at home, whereby the activities of private citizens are spied upon and tracked by technology and systems which have been put into place under the heading of the ‘War on Terror.’ Human microchip implants for tracking purposes are starting to be used.”

Rapid Move toward a Surveillance Society [156]

“The military-industrial complex has become the nation’s largest and most successful industry with tens of thousands of planners engaged in devising new and better ways, both overt and covert, to destroy both foreign and domestic ‘enemies.’”

Katherine Albrecht and Liz McIntyre's 2006 book, The Spychips Threat, details the threat that Radio Frequency ID's (RFID) and other electronic surveillance pose to individual freedom.

The read range of RFID is between “a couple of centimeters to twenty or thirty feet.”

Battery powered RFID's may be read up to a mile away or more.

Surveillance devices are being promoted by government and industry as being necessary for our protection in these perilous times.

We are shown the many benefits of injecting our pets and children with tracking devices so we may feel safe in the knowledge of their whereabouts at all times.

An RFID injected in the bodies of soldiers may allow for tracking and recovery operations, thus protecting our military.

Industry uses RFID's and electronic surveillance to control inventory and prevent theft, and the technology exists for tracking the whereabouts of employees using RFID chips in company uniforms, entry cards, and wall and floor readers.

This technology may even be used to determine if food handlers wash their hands after a visit to the restroom.

Loyalty cards, such as used by Safeway and others, allow a supplier or manufacturer to gather data about the buying habits of their customers.

This information is stored in databases and can be used to tailor discounts for “loyal customers” while discouraging bargain shoppers with higher prices.

Did you ever wonder whether the coupons on the cash register tape were generated by the information in your loyalty card database?

Smart shelves can manage inventory.

RFID's in the goods from those shelves can track the shopper throughout the store.

Smart carts can even attempt to suggest other related items based on the shopper's history and what is already in the cart.

RFID readers built into your refrigerator or cabinets could be utilized to keep inventory, make your shopping list, and even place your order.

RFID readers can even be used to notify your insurance company that you are not taking your medicine, thus resulting in higher premiums.

Rapid Move toward a Surveillance Society [1]

RFID's in the cards in your wallet, or woven into the clothing or labels on your back can potentially be tracked and identify you, the shopper, as you enter a store.

Stores with reader ability will keep tracking your movements through the store until you leave.

Reader devices would be hidden in the doorway, floor, walls, and shelving.

Rapid Move toward a Surveillance Society [1]

The ultimate goal of the industry is to keep the RFID's active throughout the product's useful life and beyond.

With unique individual ID numbers in each chip, the product can then be tracked from the manufacture, to the store, to the home or office, to eventually the garbage can and dump.

They even plan to sell information about your garbage using roving scanners who collect the data by driving through your neighborhood on collection day.

Rapid Move toward a Surveillance Society [1]

RFID's are so tiny that even individual needles can be tracked in this way.

You can now literally find a needle in a haystack.

Rapid Move toward a Surveillance Society

Do you think this is extreme?

The military has the ability to track BB's in space.

If they can find a BB, then they can surely find you if they want.

With RFID's and other techniques, it is becoming more impossible to hide.

With active RFID's in your cards and clothing you can be tracked from store to store as you move about town or pass through toll booths.

For those of you that want to drop out of the system, Big Brother has a plan for you as well.

It will soon be impossible to conduct untraceable business with only cash.

The plan is to insert RFID technology into your paper money so that all of your transactions are recorded, not just your credit card activity.

According to Prisonplanet.com, there is evidence that an RFID chip is now located behind the right eye of Andrew Jackson on the new twenty dollar bill.

(www.prisonplanet.com/022904rfidtagsexplode.html).

Rapid Move toward a Surveillance Society [1]

When you leave the bank with your twenty dollar bill, Big Brother will watch as you spend part of it on a McDonald Big Mac and shake, and then pick up your change and march over to K-Mart where Big Brother watches as you buy a DVD.

He even knows the title of that DVD.

Rapid Move toward a Surveillance Society [1]

Big Brother can identify you by the RFID's in the clothes you bought.

They were all registered to you by the credit card or loyalty card you used when you purchased them.

RFID readers will spot you, and any transaction you make will be recorded in your name.

But, eventually a simpler solution would be to permanently ID you by a chip inserted in your body, or an invisible RFID tattoo on your hand or forehead.

Rapid Move toward a Surveillance Society [1]

All of this technology is available today including the insertable chip.

The only thing that is preventing its widespread use is consumer resistance.

But, as we saw with 9/11 and the Patriot Act, it won't take much to overcome the natural resistance and bring about the step toward the ultimate surveillance society as more people are willing to exchange freedom for security.

“The starting point is spychipped driver’s licenses, building access cards, and student name tags, and the end will be microchips embedded in your flesh.”

Spychipped driver’s licenses are in the works, building access cards are already here, while some have succumbed to the lure of the convenience and security of the insertable chip produced by Digital Angel.
